

Questions are a burden

The cheese and wine set in the UK are at it again, leaking little snippets of bad news, like if you have Klinefelters Syndrome or 5-alpha reductase deficiency, you have no access to any change in birth documentation or the Gender Recognition Certificates if you reject being assigned male. Here is an even more interesting leak, the UK Government have been naughty keeping a database of intersex people in Leicester. To what end I wonder.

I am of course not allowed to know any of this because this would mean that I would naturally object to it. If I were a transsexual, who transitioned over the age of 50, after siring 20 kids and having had 3 marriages I could get to be called a supermodel and be given an OBE for being such a beautiful citizen. But don't for one moment think that transsexual folks are safe because they are not. To be called a supermodel with an OBE, you need to have had those 20 kids, been married three times, and so on. Someone like Caroline Cossey does not cut the mustard under UK law. She was diagnosed as having Klinefelters, turned female or transitioned way too young, and actually had the temerity to ask for her human rights years before PfC were a twinkle in a certain megalomaniac's eye.

For some reason the UK Government have got it in for intersex people and younger transsexual folks. The only people who seem to technically be able get anything are those who fit some "transgender" stereotype. I hope those nice people in Strasbourg are reading this because they may have noticed that at least three human rights violations have happened and those nice people in Strasbourg have already told the UK Government to clean their act up. But the UK Government have not.

Do you want to know how the UK Government interpret the concept of "equality". Well, a transsexual goes into a clothes shop, after getting her GRC, she sees a nice range of clothes and says "Oh can I try that on before buying it". Then if the shop manager suspects she is a transsexual she may be told to use the male changing rooms, or have to prove she is not a "Protected class of gender reassignment" before she can. Her GRC is not worth the paper it is written on because all that does is confirm to the manager that she is a "Protected class of gender reassignment".

In short he has the enshrined right to refuse her the same level of service (and dignity) as any other woman. In fact he could technically call the police and have her arrested for disturbing the peace if she takes offense, she could be jailed in a men's prison (regardless of the GRC).

What does this have to do with "equality"? Bible thumping spare rib and Der Eigene rigger bugger all!

Why can we not say it as it really is. The current UK government under the "leadership" of Gordon Brown at the time of writing does not give a toss about transgender, transsexual and intersex people. All they care about is appeasing the bigots. You only have to look at the way London Pride was set up this year to see the attitude I am talking about. They had all those cheese and wine parties and somehow dreamed up a "Float" for the "transpeople" which would have those who transitioned to male wearing football strips and those who transitioned to female wearing sequins, and then there was going to be "extra security" to "ensure that these freaks are not beaten up". Meanwhile the rest of the floats would have the LGB crowd, who are "cisgendered" (norm born is my less than politically correct term for that) waving their genitalia around, waving rainbow flags singing "Look at us, we are normal unlike those freaks over there!"

And we cannot call this bigotry. We have to call this "a sensitive approach to sociopolitical constructs ensuring that equality stands and all are equal but different."

Bullshit, it is what it is – outright hate peddling! The way the UK Government handle the "T.T.I. Question" would do Himmler proud. Let's face it. Why else are we all being fed lies that mean the exact opposite of equality? Like while a few cheese and wine parties are being held on the lawn by some money grabbing politician next to the Olympic sized swimming pool and 50 foot plasma TV set (all paid for by the taxpayer), we find transgender, transsexual and intersex people not even being able to buy goods from the shops without being told to display a yellow star or Pink triangle called a G.R.C.

What we are seeing here is a lot closer to what went on in 1930's Germany than most people would dare to think. This is not some Daily Wail rant either, but a barefaced fact. I don't know what the "Final Solution" will turn out to be but the pattern of societal abuse is identical to the way minorities had their rights whittled down (Oh how ironic) in Germany in the 1930's.

And if you dare to confront any of these people over what they are doing you find them threatening to "hunt down" your friends and have you sent to prison for knowing too much.

The Labor government in the UK have proven themselves, beyond any shadow of a doubt to be the biggest bunch of lying, self righteous bigots walking and people just seem to accept it all without question.

So I will write down four simple questions in the vain hope the UK Government have the balls to answer them.

1: Why are intersex people deliberately excluded from any means of altering their documentation if they reject the sex they were assigned as children without consent?

2: Why is the G.R.C. a toothless sham, as evidenced by the fact that it is little more than a yellow star or pink triangle when it comes to something as simple as buying goods or getting a job?

3: Why do they pretend in the Equality Bill, that such overt and enshrined bigotry can be called "Equality" when it is clearly little more than a bigots charter written with the intent of diminishing or ever erasing the human rights of transgendered, transsexual and intersex people?

4: Why are the UK government keeping "Gender history" databases such as the "Gender register" (Part of the GRC application process) or keeping records of people with intersex conditions (In Leicester and also in Scotland, that latter being managed by Euro DSD).

And I have written this openly knowing full well that something nasty will probably happen because I have finally said it as it really is. But if something nasty does happen, then fine, because what I have just said is on record and people will notice and question it. It would be a lot easier if the UK Government and just admit that they are seeking to eliminate transgender, transsexual and intersex people from society. Whether that is by means of rendering them legally invisible or worse. I don't know, but for me the pattern is obvious and all those "LGBTQQXYZ" people who are at those cheese and wine parties pretending that this is not the case are little more than willing walkers turning a blind eye to what is actually going on.

It is now up to the UK Government, and Press for Change in particular to start explaining. Because if they don't, every single bit of this disgusting "Equality" hoax will be exposed for what it is. And the General Registry Office had better start explaining themselves as well. What right have they to proclaim who is what and keep databases of contrary information if the victim of all this objects?

They are supposed to be a registrar of births deaths and marriages, not some tool of social engineering acting on the sadistic whim of a bunch of bigots at cheese and wine parties.

There I have said it as it really is. What is the answer going to be then?
